WAYS OF LIVING.

How People Get Along in This World.

AN INTERESTING COMMUNITY.

Founded by Mutiniers—A London Baker's Lot—The Yakuts—Scenes in an Egyptian Village—Mexican Manners.

The Norfolk Islanders are descendants of the crew of the British man-of-war, the Bounty, who mutinied and abandoning the ship settled on Pitcairn Island in the Pacific Ocean. They married native girls and the island becoming too small for the community in 1837 they removed to Norfolk Island. The result has been a handsome race of people, temperate and moral and under church influences, their minister being ordained by the Anglican Church. The government is on the surface patriarchal. Nominally the island is a dependence of New South Wales, but in reality it is a true commune, the land being equally divided among the people. Each couple on marrying receive twenty-five acres of land and materials to build a house. Two or three acres of this will be cultivated. The prolific soil readily yields every kind of vegetable and fruit from sweet potatoes to the most marrow of peas, and from bananas to strawberries. Turkeys, fowls and pigs are also reared, and stock is run on the uncultivated acres and on the land yet reserved for families. The inhabitants raise everything they want for their own needs, except in the matters of clothing and tobacco; and the fresh meat and vegetables with which they supply whalers or passing steamers furnish enough money to procure their simple raiment. At present this system works very well, but when the rising generation grows up all the available land will be disposed of, and some outlet will be needed for the surplus population, now over 400, and rapidly increasing.

AN ENGLISH BAKER'S WORK.

Here is the way a London baker lives who is a foreman and is considered prosperous: "I rent this two-story six-roomed house for 10s. ($2.50) per week and pay 2s. 10d. per week taxes. I sub let two furnished rooms for 6s. a week. My pay is 30s. a week, with six four-pound loaves of bread, three and a half pounds of flour, 14d. sack-money and 17d. yeast money a week, besides 2d. per loaf for the miller at Christmas. For this work I work seventy-four hours a week. Fortunately I live near my work, so that I am not forced to get up much before 3 o'clock. I eat nothing before beginning my work. At half past 4 in the morning I get breakfast of bread, butter, milk and sugar taken from the material given me for bread-making. At half-past 9 I get lunch of the same material, with perhaps an egg or a bit of bacon. Dinner is sent from home to me at 2, and is of meat or fish and potatoes. I never eat with my family at home except on Sunday. I allow my wife £1 ($5) per week for all housekeeping expenses, including rent. From the rest of my pay, I provide 7s. 3d. per quarter for my trade society and 6s. 3d. per year for the pension society. Saving is impossible. Sometimes I have 25 cents left on Friday night. After thirty-five years' hard work I have saved nothing. I do not know any journeyman baker who, in his life, has saved $500. When unable to work they go to the poor house."

HOUSEKEEPING AMONG THE YAKUTS.

Notwithstanding a temperature ranging from fifty to eighty degrees below zero, the interior of the Yakut's hut in Northern Siberia is almost intolerably close. In going to bed the people strip of their shirts, which are made of a thick sort of Russian cloth as heavy as our canvas. The men and women wear the same kind of garments, and never have more than one at a time. When they undress they get into bunks built in the side of the house, sometimes a man, his wife and all his children in the same bunk. They have reindeer skins under and over them, and curtains of the same hanging before the bunks. The last man or woman to undress hangs all the clothing of the rest on a dole that is kept for the purpose. This is to freeze the lice. They couldn't live if they didn't do it, and it has become a national custom. The lice gets into the fur and that is the only way to get them out. By hanging their clothes over the pole every night they can keep reasonably free from them, but the fur fills up again the next day.

EX-PRESIDENT HAYES' CHICKENS.

Rutherford B. Hayes once ruled 60,000,000 people; he now rules sixty chickens. A correspondent who has described his home pursuits says: "Loved by his chickens, his goats and his neighbors, Hayes Bourke is rather than loiter toward the farm in the fat land of Ohio—the greatest statesman poultryer, the only Buckeye Cincinnati! When the sun is rising over Fremont and the dew is on the grass in Ohio, Rutherford may often be seen with a little pen of grain feeding his chickens. In the day dawn the chickens gather under his window and wait for the ex-President to rise, as the courtiers of Louis XIV gathered at the royal chamber. The chickens follow Rutherford around when he walks through his fields and inspect his farm with him. He takes them to poultry shows, and what with two or three coops of chickens and three or four pumpkins the Hayes exhibit makes a large part of many country fairs. Often the chickens come back to the little Hayes farm gay with ribbons and crowing with victory. And the pumpkins, they came back wearing blue ribbons, but all their gladness is swiftly changing into pies."

EGYPTIAN PEASANTS.

Egyptian villages are built with no regularity of street or style of architecture. If such a term can be applied to low, flat-topped mud houses, with seldom more than two or three rooms in them. These houses are very dirty, nasty looking affairs; the sleeping places would not deserve the name of bed; they are a few straw mats piled together in a heap on a bare mud floor; no chair, no furniture of any description, except a few calabashes and trays for cooking or preparing their food. Everything indicates the most abject poverty, yet some of them are worth thousands of dollars. Fowls, pigeons, goats and dogs are as much at home in the house as the family, and live in the house day and night. Naturally the people are dirty, especially the children, who run about half naked until they are ten or twelve years of age.

MEXICAN COURTESY.

Manners are very courteous in Mexican home life. After a call it would violate the conventionalities to depart without exchanging the customary elaborate farewells with each individual member of the circle. Then, in passing through a door, there is almost invariably a contest of courtesy as to who shall go first. The proper demonstration of farewell between Mexican women is the light embrace emphasized in the north by each putting with her right hand the other's shoulder; in the City of Mexico and thereabouts by a kiss on either cheek. Between women and men, a bow and a hand-shake, or the bow alone, is the correct thing.

TAILORS BILLS IN BERLIN.

Berlin merchant tailors pay from $2.50 to $5 for making a coat; from 60 cents to $1.25 for making a pair of trousers. A journeyman tailor working for one of the most fashionable tailors in the city lived on the third floor of a tenement, where he had two rooms and a kitchen, for which he pays $90 a year. The place was poorly ventilated and was made close and foul by the petroleum lamps, by the light of which he and his daughters stitched away.

LEPROSY IN LOUISIANA.

Dr. Holt Calls on the State to Provide a Hospital.

The very thorough report of Dr. Holt on the subject of the leprosy found to exist in St. Martinville calls attention to a duty which the legislature ought to have attended to years ago. There are lepers in Lafourche, St. Martin, and Vermillion parishes. It is to be remembered, however, that while the cases of leprosy in St. Martinville were clearly shown to be hereditary, that a former investigation in Lafourche indicated that the disease was contagious, and the British medical commission which investigated the epidemic in Nova Scotia, to which most of the cases in Louisiana are traceable, was thoroughly convinced of its contagiousness. Dr. Holt calls on the State government to provide a special hospital for these people. Dr. Jones, when he made an investigation some years ago, of the leper settlement in Lafourche, made a similar suggestion. There are less than two dozen lepers in Louisiana, whose existence and location are known. To care for them would cost a few thousand dollars at most, and the result would be to exterminate in a few years a disease which has remained a blot on Louisiana for too long a time already. Even the old Spanish governments recognized the duties of the government in this matter, and to meet the increase in leprosy then prevalent in New Orleans, as well as in some of the parishes, established a hospital here just a century ago, and within a few years leprosy had disappeared from Louisiana. It has since established itself in two or three well-marked sections of the State where it will linger forever, slowly extending its tentacles to the leper colony in this matter, and to meet the increase in leprosy then prevalent in New Orleans, as well as in some of the parishes, established a hospital here just a century ago, and within a few years leprosy had disappeared from Louisiana.
